

As a subscriber to XM satellite radio for over a year now I can not begin to explain how wonderful it is and I am sure some of you staff can attest to this also. I went to XM as I could not find any station to suit my musical taste on the FM dial, everyone seems to have the same play list and the same owners for that matter. I feel XM and Sirius have brought some much needed competition to the radio market that will benefit the listeners. Satellite radio may not be in best interest of businesses running the terrestrial stations but please remember your agency's responsibility is to the listeners across the country. The terrestrial stations should be a little more introspective when people are willing to pay to listen to radio it says a lot about the free product that is out there.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Greg Jilek
